Forecast for Tuesday 14 Dec 2021

Weather: Rather cloudy across southern and western hills with a few spots of drizzle, but mainly dry with some clear spells in the east. A largely dry and bright day is expected, although southern and western hills look cloudier with, at first, a few spots of drizzle, but elsewhere there will be some good spells of sunshine. Remaining dry with clear spells through the evening

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: Little chance across southern and western hills, but around 75% across eastern.

Visibility: Periods or persistent cloud above 300-450m across the south and west, but cloud more occasional above about 600m in east. Away from cloud visibility good or very good falling to several kilometres in drizzle.
